

Who We Are

GreenFaith is building an international, grassroots, multi-faith climate justice movement. We were founded in 1992 as a local volunteer organization in the United States. Now, with volunteers in 40 countries and active campaigns in Africa, Asia, Europe, and the Americas, we are building a growing community of concerned people of diverse faiths.

We provide eco-theology education and eco-spirituality to deepen our community's commitment to climate justice, and skills training in religiously-rooted organizing, campaigning and communications. Together, we campaign against new fossil fuel projects and related financing and build support for accelerated renewable energy development, green jobs that can lift people from poverty, and funding for climate-impacted countries and communities. Mission

Because the Earth and all people are sacred and at risk, GreenFaith is building a worldwide, multi-faith climate and environmental movement.

Together our members create communities to transform ourselves, our spiritual institutions, and society to protect the planet and create a compassionate, loving and just world.

Vision

We envision a world transformed, in which humanity in all its diversity has developed a shared reverence for life on Earth.

Religious and spiritual communities everywhere generate a moral awakening to the sacredness of Earth and the dignity of all people. Together, we are building resilient, caring communities and economies that meet everyone's needs and protect the planet. The era of conquest, extraction, and exploitation has given way to cooperation and community.

The good life is one of connectedness—with each other and all of nature. It is a world of flourishing life that replaces despair with joy, scarcity with shared abundance, and privilege with justly distributed power.

No Faith in Fossil Fuels

These days, we have “No Faith in Fossil Fuels.”

We are people of faith, spirit, and conscience whose varied traditions teach us to care for the earth and each other. Our hearts break watching the destruction of our communities and our precious earth caused by corporations and governments that refuse to end the era of fossil fuels.

In the face of resignation and apathy, our spiritual traditions call us to be stirred by the call for justice and collective thriving on earth. In the face of fear and greed, we choose love, solidarity, and righteous peaceful protest.

Together, we are resisting new fossil fuel infrastructure and pushing governments, asset managers and banks to stop investing in fossil fuels, and to invest instead in the transition to a clean, just energy economy. These efforts are some of the most critical campaigns of our time. When enough people engage boldly, faithfully and powerfully, we will win.

Take Action

The current scale of the climate crisis requires a cooperative global solution that addresses the fossil fuel industry directly. As leaders across diverse religious and spiritual communities around the globe, we call on governments to urgently commence negotiations to develop and implement a Fossil Fuel Non-Proliferation Treaty, laying out a binding global plan to:

1. End expansion of any new coal, oil or gas production in line with the best available science as outlined by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) and the United Nations Environment Programme;
2. Phase-out existing production of fossil fuels in a manner that is fair and equitable, taking into account the respective dependency of countries on fossil fuels and their capacity to transition;
3. Ensure a global, just transition to 100% access to renewable energy globally, support dependent economies to diversify away from fossil fuels, and enable all people and communities, not least the Global South, to flourish.

Get Involved

We're organizing religious groups to divest from fossil fuels, industrial agriculture, and the banks that finance the planet's destruction and invest in climate solutions, especially those providing clean energy to the millions living without electricity. We're striving to lead by example, adopting climate-friendly consumption habits at home and at our places of prayer and worship.

In communities all around the world, in circles of friends and neighbors, our community is coming together to build equitable, caring and resilient institutions and societies. Join Us!
